Life Flight insurance... IT JUST MAY SAVE YOUR LIFE!

We have many clients and friends who are riders and spend much of their free time out on the open road. This year at MML we had some family and friends who experienced medical emergencies outside of the city and it got us talking about a little-known thing called Life Flight insurance.

Medical emergencies and accidents can happen everywhere! When you venture out of any metropolitan area it can jeopardize your chance of survival when experiencing a serious medical emergency.

Life Flight Network is a nonprofit air medical transport service. They have helicopter, fixedwing, and ground ambulance bases throughout Oregon, Washington, Idaho, and Montana. Life Flight Network offers an annual membership that allows benefits for you, your spouse and dependents for as little as $65 a year!

The Life Flight Network can quickly dispatch an emergency transport team and provide ICU-level care and life-saving transport to seriously ill or injured patients from the scene of an emergency or from one hospital to another. When you are a member, there is no out-of-pocket cost for medically necessary emergency flights.

If you like to be out on the open road or just like spending your time outside of the city we highly recommend looking into this coverage. The cost is minimal considering it could be a lifesaving necessity for you and your family!

To learn more about Life Flight Network please visit their website at www.lifeflight.org.

Be safe out there and enjoy your summer!

What to Know If your Child is Injured in a Car Accident

The best advice right after a car accident with an injured child is to get medical care immediately. Then seek legal help shortly thereafter. A medical evaluation after a car accident not only benefits the child's health but can also support a legal case later.

GET MEDICAL CARE EVEN IF INJURIES ARE NOT OBVIOUS

The priority is to get medical care for the child. If the child is seriously hurt, then the child obviously requires immediate medical care. But even if your child does not appear seriously injured, you should still take the child for a medical evaluation. Children do not always report pain and injuries accurately, so a doctor should evaluate the child for any potential injuries.

If additional care is needed to heal from injuries, make sure your child attends all doctor appointments and therapy sessions. Not only will this lead to better health outcomes, it can help establish a connection between the accident and the child's injuries, which is important in a later injury claim.

HOW CAR ACCIDENTS WITH MINOR CHILDREN ARE DIFFERENT THAN ADULT CASES

First, the recoverable damages in a child's injury case can be different from those of an adult. For example, if the injuries cause a permanent disability, the disability will affect the child for a longer period than an adult who suffers a disability later in life. If a permanent disability affects future ability to work, it can be more challenging to quantify that when a child does not have any job history.

These and other factors will affect the value of the child's claim, which should be discussed with an attorney. Some other differences between a child's injury claim and an adult's injury claim include:

- The statute of limitations (when a lawsuit must be filed to protect your legal rights) doesn't start running until their 18th birthday and expires on their 21st birthday.

- Washington State requires court review and approval of all settlements involving children.

KEEP AN INJURY JOURNAL FOR YOUR CHILD

If your child is old enough, have them keep a journal of how their injuries affect their life. If your child is still young, keep the journal for them. Some things to write down in the journal include:

- The child's pain and suffering (pain levels)
- How injuries limit your child's functional capacity, things they can't do any more or need help with again
- How injuries affect your child's enjoyment of life, things they are missing out on
- Record of medical care sought and received

DO YOU EVEN ADVENTURE RIDE BRO?

BY MAX MEYERS

Do you know what an Adventure Motorcycle is? They are more commonly known as dual-sport motorcycles - meaning they can be ridden on pavement and dirt at any time.

Shelly and I were outside Leavenworth in Plain, WA the last weekend of June for the Touratech Rally. The rally was a 4-day event with daily rides on logging roads surrounding the area. There were 12 rides from beginner to advanced routes depending on your experience level. Plus, all kinds of classes to improve knowledge and riding skills. We were in ear shot of these classes and learned some good first aid tips, bike handling tips, and how to fix a flat in the bush for both tube and tubeless tires.

It was a fun event and if you're into dual-sport riding you should definitely attend the rally next year.
